

EST. 1873
ST PANCRAS
 RENAISSANCE® HOTEL
 LONDON

Sir John Betjeman called this Gothic treasure “too beautiful and too romantic to survive” in a world of tower blocks and concrete. Its survival against the odds will cause wonder; the building itself will take your breath away.

After years of devoted restoration, the St Pancras Renaissance Hotel is being hailed as London’s most romantic building. Its glorious Gothic Revival metalwork, gold leaf ceilings, hand-stencilled wall designs and a jaw-dropping grand staircase are as dazzling as the day Queen Victoria opened the hotel in 1873.

BOOKING OFFICE

Reviving the tradition of the station café that can draw the crowds, the Booking Offices cathedral-like drama, 29m-long bar and fresh English fare are conversation-stoppers at any time of day. A striking setting for a business breakfast, snack or classic English dining from an all day menu the Booking Office will also list an array of punches and mixed drinks recreated from lost recipes from the Victorian era, as well as a range of bespoke and seasonal cocktails.

THE GILBERT SCOTT

The Gilbert Scott restaurant, operated by one of Britain’s most celebrated chefs, Marcus Wareing. Inspired by the historical wonderment of Sir George Gilbert Scott’s creation, the menu highlights skilled cooks of old time United Kingdom who, like Scott, were the pioneers and innovative craftfolk of their time.

ST PANCRAS SPA

In a world of its own, far from the city streets beneath the hotel, is London’s most luxurious and exclusive spa, its six health and beauty rooms equipped for total sensory transportation.

Accompany us on a Victorian journey of the senses, from St Pancras to Africa, India and the Far East, to discover the world’s finest beauty recipes and remedies.

Then indulge in your own transport of delight with one of our blissful spa ‘journeys’, or a combination of rituals designed to meet your own individual needs.

BEDROOMS

245 richly appointed bedrooms including 38 grand suites with butler service and Chambers Club access.

MELOGY BARBERS

Melogy is one of London's top grooming establishments for men. Founded by GQ 'Barber of Choice' Carmelo Guastella. Melogy's team of experts combine traditional barbering and personal service with the latest techniques, products and trends.

BUSINESS AND MEETINGS

Business venues don't come more inspirational than this. Originally built to convey the kind of audacity, creativity and corporate might that typified Victorian enterprise, the St Pancras Renaissance is London's newest and most exciting venue for meetings and business events. Our rooms, restored to their original Victorian splendour and equipped with the latest presentation technologies, are able to host one-to-one appointments, interviews, board meetings, workshops, seminars, launches and receptions for up to 550 guests, all with breathtaking style and efficiency.

SOCIAL AND EVENTS

The St Pancras Renaissance is a celebration—a celebration of Victorian joie de vivre and sophistication, of art, travel and pioneering engineering, and of life itself. We have a range of settings for receptions, birthdays, bar mitzvahs, charity functions and anniversaries, from large, banquet-sized function rooms to smaller but equally sumptuous rooms for more intimate events. It goes without saying that the care and precision that has gone into the surroundings is more than matched by that of our service and catering.

Designed by Sir George Gilbert Scott to receive travellers through St Pancras Station, the former Midland Grand Hotel offered its guests a world of grandeur, luxury and fantasy behind its fairytale red façade.
